Dr. Dan Johnson honored as a Champion in Health Care

Denver, CO -- Daniel Johnson, MD, FAAHPM, Director of Life Quality Institute, received the Champions in Health Care Award from the Denver Business Journal on September 24, 2009.

Over the past four years, The Denver Business Journal (DBJ) has recognized physicians who have made an impact on the community through health care. This year, Dr. Johnson received the award for best Provider at a reception held at the Brown Palace Hotel.

“Cheryl Siefert, executive director of LQI, called Johnson’s passion “contagious” and that it extends beyond his patient’s besides. “It permeates the community,” she said. “He’s a combination of a gifted physician and talented teacher. He’s just as comfortable teaching physicians about palliative care as he is talking with patients and families during their grief.”

Dr. Johnson is the Regional Department Chief of Palliative Care for Kaiser Permanente Colorado. To read the article please see the September 25th issue of The Denver Business Journal. For more information on Life Quality Institute or Dr. Daniel Johnson, please visit www.lifequalityinstitute.org.
